Background

Roads and Maritime Services is delivering a $25 million upgrade of the Oxley Highway at Spencers Cutting, about six kilometres east of Wauchope, to improve safety and traffic flow. The project includes:

- Removing sharp bends by realigning the road
- Building an eastbound overtaking lane between Spencers Cutting and to the west of Rawdon Island Road
- Extending the existing westbound overtaking lane
- Realigning the intersection with Rawdon Island Road
- Widening the highway to accommodate 3.5m lanes and two-metre shoulders
- Improving drainage
- Installing new safety barriers.

What has happened to date?

Since major work started in June 2018, we have made excellent progress, including:

- Opening the new road from the eastern end of work through to Rawdon Island Road
- Opening the new Rawdon Island Road intersection
- Completing new drainage work at the western end of the project.
Upcoming work

- Preparation work will begin for the western connection
- Installing new safety barriers on the western half of the project
- Final surfacing and line-marking.

The project is scheduled for completion in September 2019

Traffic changes

Intermittent traffic changes, with reduced speed limits, will be in place with delays of up to five minutes. More information will be made available before the changes take place.
